

Hill Country Revue Bio

HILL COUNTRY REVUE is THE modern blues band for the new generation. Formed by Cody Dickinson from The North Mississippi Allstars in 2008, it features Dickinson on guitar along with fellow Allstars member Chris Chew on bass. The other band members include Kirk Smithhart, Eddie Cleveland and 'Dixie' Dan Coburn. The band is a collective of musicians from the fertile soil of North Mississippi who have grown up living the music. Often Luther Dickinson, Duwayne Burnside, Garry Burnside and other lauded musicians join the group.

The Hill Country Revue represents a return to juke-joint one-chord trance blues of north Mississippi, styles made famous by local blues legends like R.L. Burnside and Junior Kimbrough. By drawing from the traditional songs and modes of the Hill Country, the band stays true to its roots yet pushes the boundary by incorporating new songs and elements for the next generation.

As part of the North Mississippi Allstars, Cody Dickinson and Chris Chew have three Grammy nominated albums under their belt. They have shared the stage with artists as diverse as Kid Rock, Dave Matthews Band and Mavis Staples, and toured all over the world steadily since 1996, earning a legion of fans.

Get more info on the band at: <http://www.myspace.com/hillcountryrevue>